Gladstone Parries the Thrusts of Unionists.

A BRUTAL SCENE IN THE CITY OF PARIS.

The Surest Safeguard of France—The Mysterious "X" of the Panama Canal Swindle—Kossuth on the Situation in Hungary.

Gladstone Parries the Thrusts of Unionists.

LONDON, March 28.—Mr. Gladstone was visited today by delegations from the Belfast chamber of commerce, the Belfast harbor commissioners and the Ulster linen merchants' association. He addressed the premises in deprecation of the proposal to establish a separate legislature in Ireland and represented that Irish interests would be greatly injured thereby and that religious and racial differences would make successful home rule impossible.

Mr. Gladstone, in reply, discounted the importance of the fall in Irish securities, which, he said, doubtless arose from the fact that the majority of the property-owning classes in Ireland were opposed to home rule. Mr. Gladstone disputed the allegation that historical jealousy existed between the members of the different religions in Ireland, and he denied that racial divisions would prevent unity under one local government. Mr. Gladstone referred to the dominion of Canada for an instance of the existence of racial divisions in Ireland. There, too, there have been gloomy prophecies when an autonomous scheme of government was proposed; but Canada, nevertheless, was contented and prosperous. As to the charges that capital would be driven from Ireland because of home rule, Mr. Gladstone said that, so far from there being a chronic want of money in Ireland when home rule would be established there, there would, he believed, be a plethora of money, as the expenses of the government were now enormously extravagant.

After replying to the union emissaries from Ulster, Mr. Gladstone received a deputation of London merchants and bankers, including Mr. H. S. J. John Lubbock, liberal unionist member for London university, and Rt. Hon. Wm. Lillie, one of the directors of the Bank of England, who had come to represent the financial interests involved in the home rule scheme.

Mr. Gladstone said he was sadly sensitive that the government was at issue with the money classes, whose views were commonly opposed to national sentiment. They should remember, however, that the people of the last Irish parliament had been a period of marked financial progress, and the proposed measure was, as a matter of fact, conservative and not revolutionary.

Brutal Treatment of a German Family.

PARIS, March 28.—Otto Brandes, Paris correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt, who was ordered from the country on suspicion of having been the author of an article charging Ernest Carnot with receiving Panama cash-fund money, went to the police bureau yesterday morning and gave notice that he would start for Germany at once. His house in Asnières, a suburb of Paris, had already been covered with insulting placards and when he left it with Mrs. Brandes a crowd of men and boys began hooting and groaning at him. The crowd followed Mr. and Mrs. Brandes to their train without an effort from the police to drive them back.

Shortly afterward Mrs. Brandes' daughters left the house to meet their parents in the city. The young women were surrounded by men and boys and were hustled about, and before they could get to the train were struck repeatedly with sticks and lumps of dirt. One of the daughters received a severe cut on the head and required the services of a physician before she could leave the city. The government made an effort to protect the Brandes family from such abuses, but even allowed them to travel without the usual escort of gendarmes.

The Surest Safeguard of France.

PARIS, March 28.—M. Chaillet in Court. M. Jules Ferry's successor took the chair yesterday as presiding officer. There were names of the new president and introductory address of the new president was listened to with great interest. M. Chaillet in Court said: "France must ever find in the senate the surest safeguard against aggressions, removed from time to time by parties hoping to turn them to their own advantage."

This outspoken advocacy of the government was not unexpected in view of the support given by the supporters of President Carnot to M. Chaillet in Court's candidacy.

In the chamber of deputies Gen. Ranc, minister of marine, stated that 3,000 more troops would be required to maintain French authority in Dahomey. The health of the army in Dahomey was excellent, but there would be no permanent security for the French in that country until Bohanzel, the ex-king, who still maintained a show of hostility, had been entirely vanquished.

The Mysterious "X" of the Panama Canal Cases.

PARIS, March 28.—M. Andrieux, prefect of police, was yesterday before the parliamentary committee of inquiry in the Panama case to testify concerning the mysterious "X" who received 50,000 francs from the Panama corporation fund. He repeated his statement that "X" was neither a conspicuous diplomatist or a member of the Carnot family. He had not been driven by force of circumstances to reveal "X's" correct name. M. Clement, police cornet, who knew "X's" correct name, authorized him to make it public. Motives of honor prevented him doing this at present.

M. Andrieux added that if the government would place at his disposal an special officer, he would agree to arrest M. Arton, the fugitive Panama lobbyist, within a week.

Louis Kossuth on the Ecclesiastical Situation in Hungary.

TURIN, March 28.—Louis Kossuth, the aged Hungarian patriot, who is living in exile in this city, yesterday received a deputation of his fellow-countrymen and admirers. In discussing with the deputation the political situation in Hungary, Kossuth said that the ecclesiastical programme of the Hungarian government was the key to Hungary's future, and that this programme ought to be supported unconditionally by all lovers of the country. Kossuth is enjoying as good health as could be expected in a man of his extreme age. He is now over 90 years old.

LATIMER RETAINED.

Great Excitement at Jackson, Mich., Over the Capture.

JACKSON, Mich., March 28.—A dispatch has been received here which says that Latimer has been captured in the remote, hillsides of the state, and is now being driven here, eighteen miles.

Latimer, who was terribly fatigued from his long walk, with nothing on his feet but a pair of felt boots which he procured after his escape, could stand it no longer, and determined to procure a pair of shoes even at the risk of capture. He entered a shoe store at the small village of Jerome and while bargaining for some shoes he was recognized by a man in the store, but in his exhausted condition it was an easy matter to effect his capture. He is being brought here in a wagon, heavily guarded, and it is not probable that he will escape. He is being taken to the jail here, and many people are going out on the road by which Latimer is coming to this city.

A FIGHT AT ANTLERS

Between Citizens and a Command of Militia.

WITH SMALL CREDIT TO THE LATTER.

Who Fire on Defenseless Women and Children—The Wounded—The Militia in Danger of an Attack from the Enraged Citizens.

PARIS, Tex., March 20.—The expected conflict at Antlers between the militia forces of Gov. Jones and the citizens, headed by V. M. Locke, came to pass yesterday. Early in the morning, the militia having withdrawn from the town, swooped down in force and made a search for the citizens. They surrounded Locke's house, but kept carefully under cover until Mr. Locke, in answer to repeated calls, came out. They told him to get out, and when he refused, they rushed on the house and subjected it to a thorough search.

After a while they left and returned to their camp. Here they were visited by your correspondent with Assistant Attorney Lowe and Commissioner Patrick and Gibbons, who notified the Indian officers that they would be held responsible for any violation of the law and demanded to know if they were prepared for any parties and if so for whom.

On the show-down it appeared that they had process only for one, Willis Jones, who had not been discovered for two months, and they were so told. They then began to make a search for a list of seven or eight, including Locke, for whom they claimed to have process.

Returning to Antlers, Locke and five or six friends were found there. He was told that the militia were looking for him to make another effort for peace, and upon learning that the militia only had warrants for Jones, became more than ever satisfied that they were seeking an excuse to kill him. After consulting the militia, the militia officers wrote out a proposal agreeing to surrender if those officers could show a warrant properly made out.

Soon after the party had left the militia camp in the morning, Capt. Durant placed the command in charge of Capt. Thompson, his junior officer, and went to see the county judge. Locke's proposal was submitted to Capt. Durant, an address of Jones, who said it covered the militia law exactly, and a United Press correspondent, with Commissioners Patrick and Gibbons and Capt. Durant, departed with it for the camp, south of the town. The militia officers, however, led by G. W. Dukes, coming on a run. An effort was made to halt them, but without effect. Calling that Locke was in town unarmed, one of the party dropped out.

Locke and his party were warned him, but was promptly halted by Dukes and ordered back. Locke was just starting from his house up town when Mrs. Locke saw the militia coming, and calling a block train of militia, she and a negro in the house. Our party hurried back and reached a corner of Locke's place 300 yards from his house as the militia charged the place, firing into the house as they came.

Locke called to them to let the woman and children go, but a steady roar from seventy-eight Winchester was the only reply.

Several of the militia stopped with saying they were not on that sort of service. The attacking party clung to the fences and trees, and huddled the ground, which sloped down from the house. We could see over the whole ground, and the militia were firing at the on the east wing and soon riddled it, smashing out every window, and after the fight it did not look as though a sparrow could have lived in the house. Bowls, pitchers, mirrors and pictures, and the furniture was all torn and riddled by the leaden hail.

Locke and his five men returned the fire steadily. Mrs. Locke and the children had run at the beginning and made their way to neighbors, being fired at repeatedly as they escaped. When about 1,600 shots had been fired Capt. Thompson arrived and as quick as possible called off his men who had been urged into the trouble by Dukes. The militia were then ordered to disband and four others were returned serious wounds. Two Indians and a negro of the Locke faction were wounded, but they will probably recover.

The militia were warned that if they made an attack upon Locke without provocation and unsupported by legal warrant they would come in conflict with the United States laws, as Locke had frequently served in the marshal's posse, and that they were to continue to Commissioner Patrick at once issued warrants, and Commissioner Gibbons and a single deputy began to make arrests, beginning with Dukes, and he and eighteen others are now in jail.

The probabilities are that Locke's people at Klametia, on hearing of the fight, will swoop in turn on the militia and clean it up. Locke will endeavor to prevent any attack by his people, but may not be able to contain them.

In Locke's house the three men wounded were Mack Hill, shot through the shoulder; John Worcester and Solomon Hodder, shot in the head. Of the militia Solomon Bediste was shot through the arm and in the side, and mortally wounded. The three others had flesh wounds.

Locke's little daughter had her hair burned with her little sister in her arms. Locke had a bad leg broken, his hat, and his son had a narrow escape.

The Resignation of Dr. F. O. St. Clair.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Secretary Gresham has not yet acted upon the resignation of Dr. F. O. St. Clair, as chief of the consular bureau of the department, which the secretary requested Saturday. Dr. St. Clair was at the state department, but still refused to talk about his case.

The charge of withholding official papers which formed the reported basis for the request for Dr. St. Clair's resignation grows out of the removal from office last August of Mr. Johnson, the United States consul at Kiel, Germany. Dr. St. Clair suspected or was given information that led him to suspect that Consul Johnson was not conducting his office properly, and he sent a consular clerk to Kiel to investigate. A number of letters written by the clerk and addressed to Dr. St. Clair were marked "Kioskiing." Dr. St. Clair showed them to Acting Secretary Wharton, who examined them and then returned them to the doctor.

Some time after this Secretary John W. Foster was placed in possession of information derogatory to Consul Johnson. He sent for Dr. St. Clair and informed him of the charges against Johnson and the doctor replied that he already knew the circumstances. Mr. Foster was surprised, and asked why the department had not been informed of what the doctor knew. When Dr. St. Clair answered that his information was obtained through letters from the consular clerk, Mr. Foster demanded to see the letters. At last they were produced, and Mr. Foster decided that they were official documents, and should not have been treated as personal. The letters were then placed on file at the department, after Dr. St. Clair had received a reprimand from Mr. Foster. It is reported that Secretary Gresham's knowledge of the affair came to him through Mr. Foster, and that his resignation was demanded Dr. St. Clair's resignation was based on the result of inquiries started by what had been told him by his predecessor.

The Charges Against Senator Beach, of North Dakota.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Careful inquiry discloses the fact that the resolution introduced in the senate yesterday looking into the charges against Senator Beach, of North Dakota, were presented by Senator Hoar of his own volition, and not as the result of any caucus action. It is also learned that some republican senators do not look with favor upon the proposition. They hold that the acts of a man before his election as senator are not proper for investigation, provided they have no connection with his official duties.

The democratic senators were plainly vexed at Mr. Hoar's move, although they had timely notice of his intention through the medium of the newspapers. It is intimated that the democratic steering committee will consult upon the matter and agree upon the course that shall be pursued in the disposition of the resolution. But if the opinions of the democratic senators are any way divided, there does not appear any feasible way to stop the investigation now. Under the practice of the senate any senator can procure an investigation of any matter that comes up. Now, if it were proposed to go into an investigation of this kind, it might as well be made sweeping, and take in the personal character and antecedents of every senator on the floor.

The Battle for the Reorganization of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The introduction by Senator Gorman in the senate yesterday morning of the senate caucus resolution providing for a reorganization of the force of the senate officers, means a transfer of the struggle from secret session to the open sessions of the senate. All compromise having failed and all attempts to adjust the matter amicably in private having come to naught, the fight is now to be waged in the open field. Just what the outcome will be cannot be predicted, but there is reason to believe that both sides are half-hearted in the matter, and it is safe to say that a majority of the senators really do not feel sufficient interest in the reorganization to make a very spirited contest on either side of the proposition. Of course this seeming apathy may vanish as the fight progresses and hard feelings may be kindled by the debate, and when they talk for publication senators are careful to say that they intend to fight for or against the resolution all summer, if necessary. It is evident that at present the feeling is one of indifference on the part of a large number of the senators.

Getting Easy on the Gold Question.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The gold exported from New York yesterday amounted to $500,000, and all of it was taken from the treasury. The loss of so small an amount does not even excite comment in treasury circles, as the free gold in the command of the treasurer now aggregates more than $7,000,000, and the treasury is gaining gold each day in its ordinary business transactions. The offers of gold in exchange for small notes are continuing very heavy, with the opening of the spring trade. The secretary is accepting these as rapidly as possible, selecting, however, those that are most advantageous. At present there is the slightest doubt in official circles that within the next few months the gold balance in the treasury will be increased to $115,000,000, or $15,000,000 of free gold, sufficient for all ordinary purposes.

GEN. KIRBY SMITH,

The Last of the Line of Full Generals.

IN THE LATE WAR OF THE REBELLION.

Died at a Ripe Old Age and Full of Honors at Sevens, Tenn.—Sublime Simplicity of His Christian Faith.

SEVENS, Tenn., March 28.—Gen. E. Kirby Smith, professor of mathematics in the University of the South since 1878, died here yesterday afternoon at 3:30. For twenty years his health had been declining. Two weeks ago he was taken sick in New Orleans, and was confined to his bed for five or six days, but recovered sufficiently to travel, and reported at Sevens ready for duty Monday, March 19. Tuesday afternoon he caught cold and a release ensued, his condition being complicated by congestion of the right lung. Everything in human power was done to save him, but from the first it was evident that the chances were against his recovery. Once or twice during temporary periods of semi-consciousness his mind wandered through past scenes and he ordered the batteries upon. Daily yesterday morning he became totally unconscious. His end was very peaceful. His wife and six of his family were with him. He died as he had lived, brave, strong and confident in his Christian faith and hope. One of his very last connected utterances was a verse from the Twenty-third Psalm: "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me."

Gen. Kirby Smith was born in St. Augustine, Fla., May 10, 1814, and was therefore in the 79th year of his age. With him closes the line of full generals on whose shoulders the late war, his commission as full general in the confederate service having been issued February 19, 1864. He came from an illustrious family of soldiers that has participated with distinction in every war waged in this country since the old French war. His grandfather served both against the French and the British, being a major in the revolutionary war. His father was colonel in the war of 1812, and was afterwards made United States judge of the supreme court of Florida. His elder brother was twice breveted for gallantry on the field in the same war. An account of his life, recognized by himself as authentic, will be found in Appleton's Biographical dictionary.

Gen. Kirby Smith married Miss Cassie Selden, of Virginia, in 1863. His wife and eleven children survive him. His eldest son, E. Kirby Smith, Jr., has been for some years a civil engineer in Mexico. Funeral services will be held Friday.

TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Western Passenger Association Lines Considering the Question of Rates.

CHICAGO, March 28.—Western Passenger Association lines spent the day yesterday considering the report of the committee on World's fair rates. The report was considered section by section and not more than half of the report was discussed. The opinion expressed entirely on the final vote to adopt the report as a whole. This vote may be reached this afternoon. The basis may be a maximum reduction of 30 or 35 per cent.

Provision will be made for one-way rates, for excursions on first-class trains, and cents-a-mile rates for coach excursions. It is fully understood by the passenger men that if the World's fair travel business is the aggregate rates will be maintained, but in case of light business a reduction will be made to draw the crowds. The Burlington's fast train between St. Paul and Chicago may tumble matters.

THE BUCHANAN CASE.

Beginning of What Promises to be a Sensational Murder Trial.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The strong statement of the case against Dr. Robert Buchanan, charged with poisoning his wife Anna R. Buchanan by Dr. Assistant District Attorney Ross yesterday, marked the real opening of what will prove to be as sensational a trial as that of Carlyle Harris. Buchanan was looking pale, but his seat in court. He talked nervously with his counsel. His eyes shifted here and there about the court room. Richard W. Macomber, who had known Dr. Buchanan since the troupe was taken to court. The cause of the trial was the sensational testimony given by the doctor, and the fact that Sturtevant had been paying attentions to another woman.
